

BOSTON CHOIR BOYS TO SING AT CHAUTAUQUA

Clearfield Will Have Big Treat At Chautauqua This Year
—Program Published

DR. WIRT IS FIRST LECTURER

Sweet music such as can be sung by young boys only is the first offering of the Chautauqua which opens here on Friday July 28th and as this is one of the stellar attractions big ten will be certain to be filled to capacity for the first performance. The Choir Boys of Boston, nine of them, will sing for us both afternoon and night.

The program as issued is not quite clear but it is supposed that the Choir Boys will give a short concert at the afternoon performance and that Dr. Wirt will give his lecture "The conquest of the Arctic" immediately following. Dr. Wirt's subject is not dry by any means. Nearly twenty years ago he was one of those who were drawn to the great cold land and in his lecture he tells the wonderful story of three years of adventure and exploration by canoe, snow shoes and dog train. A lecture that will fill you with thrills.

In the evening the Choir Boys will give a full and complete concert. A feature will be the presentation of "The Angelus" with special scenery and vestments. Another feature is the rendition of the popular songs of the typical American boy.

Clearfield is to have a great treat in the Chautauqua that comes here this season. The program is full of the best there is to offer in this popular enterprise. That the people will respond to it is an established fact and that they are growing more in favor of this kind of entertainment every year is shown by the increased enthusiasm shown by the people back of it. From day to day from now on this paper will call attention to the various attractions that will appear here with the Chautauqua and it is hoped that all will take an active interest in it. The Chautauqua is the most refined and best kind of entertainment that can be provided and no other institution offers the same range of instructive entertainment and amusement for any thing near like the cost.

PRESBYTERIAN AND BAPTIST DAY AT LAKEMONT PARK

The Presbyterians and the Baptists from the western part of the state will hold their annual reunions the same day this year at Lakemont park near Altoona, on Thursday, July 20th. A special train will go from Curwensville straight to the park, returning after the evening services, if enough will signify their intention of going. Already Philipsburg has a hundred pledged to go. M. Curwensville and Clearfield can pledge fifty, the special is assured. We ought to be able to do it. The return fare is $2.20. Notify either Rev. E. C. Reeve or W. P. Sheeder before tomorrow noon if you expect to go. It is necessary for Philipsburg to know tomorrow what Clearfield and Curwensville can do.

SIoux INDIANS ARE ON THE WATER WAGON FOR GOOD

St. Paul, Minn., July 15.—(By United Press)—Mata Ciquana, full blooded Sioux Indian, is on his way here today to tell the Prohibition National convention delegates that the Sioux are on the water wagon for good and all. Mata will recount in a speech how "Minnie Qachen" which is the Sioux for "Mysterious Water", has cursed the tribe for years, but is now and for some time has been cursed by the bucks.

Ciquana, called by his tribesmen "Little Bear" because he is six feet tall, almost as broad and weighs 220 pounds, is an author, farmer, stenographer, printer, traveler and a baseball and football fan.

His business name is de Witt Hare and he owns 200 acres of $50 land near Wagner, S. D. He is a Presbyterian, a temperance advocate and a graduate of Huron, S. D., college.

PRESIDENT NOMINATES JUDGE

Washington, July 15.—(By United Press)—President Woodrow Wilson has nominated Congressman James Hay of Virginia, to be judge on the United States court of claims.

BRITISH PUSH BACK GERMANS ON LONG FRONT

Over Three Thousand Prisoners Captured by Allies in 24 Hours of Fighting

THE GERMANS ARE RETREATING

London, July 15.—(By United Press)—The Germans at one point have been forced back to the third line of their defense under the massive British flows four miles behind their original front, General Haig reported to the war office this afternoon. "All is well at the British front," said an official statement. "We have pushed our rear from Fricourt to Mametz capturing 3,000 prisoners in 24 hours."

Since the beginning of the offensive, the total number of prisoners is now 10,000. In addition we have taken large quantities of material. The reference to the advance by the rear from Fricourt to Mametz emphasized the gains made by the British in the fighting yesterday.

The first and second British lines apparently have advanced well beyond Mametz, with the third running through Trones Woods where desperate fighting occurred. Special dispatches from Paris this afternoon reported that the Germans have retired on the French front adjoining the British to the Guillemont-Albert-Comieles railway. The retreat was made necessary by the British advance.

Berlin, July 15.—"Despite severe losses, the British succeeded in penetrating our lines between Pozieres and Longueval, gaining ground and occupying Trones Wood," said an official statement issued this afternoon.

An Italian destroyer of the Indomito type was sunk last Monday afternoon by an Austrian submarine, according to official statement from the Austrian Admiralty received here today.

PLAN TO DOUBLE SIZE OF SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, July 15.—(By United Press)—A plan to more than double the area of San Francisco is to be considered by a municipal committee here today and reported on not later than August 1. It is an annexation project similar to the borough system in New York city.

From San Francisco southward along what is known as the peninsula extends an almost uninterrupted line of small municipalities including Redwood city, San Mateo, Burlingame, Daly City, Menlo Park, South San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

Representative committees have been appointed to draft a bill for presentation to the legislature, authorizing the incorporation. This committee includes officials of the cities and towns involved. Better water and transportation are among the inducements offered.

CLEARFIELD GIRLS LEAVE FOR TWO WEEKS CAMPING

Misses Emily Gaulin, Pauline Neff, Evelyn Smith, Edna Froyd, Ethel Boyce and Miss Ruth Wrigley chartered for a two week's camping trip at Camp Mahaffey, near Mahaffey. This is an ideal location for a girl's camp as it furnishes excellent bathing and boating facilities. The house is large and commodious and convenient.

MEDIA LADY GUEST OF HONOR AT BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. G. Webb Shillingford entertained at auction bridge yesterday afternoon at her home on Old Town Road in honor of her guest, Mrs. Beebe, of Media, Pa. Three tables of progressive bridge were in play. Miss Mary Swoope, of Curwensville, took the head prize and Mrs. William Bigler, the second prize.

BRITISH STEAMER GROUND IN PATH OF DEUTSCHLAND

Norfolk, Va., July 15.—(By United Press)—The British steamer Junion is grounded near Cape Henry not far from the Channel through which the German submarine Deutschland must pass in her coming dash to sea. The Junion is in no danger, but coast cutter Onondago and several tugs have gone to her assistance.

A TRIBUTE AND A KNOCK

Recently on the 6 o'clock train I had the good-luck and misfortune to hear two men discuss Clearfield, socially, politically, industrially, etc. One is a citizen of our town, and a booster, the other an impartial married salesman.

The following is a reproduction of the conversation as near as I remember it:

Our townsman started with: "Do you know my friend, Clearfield is the most beautiful town in Central Pennsylvania, and one of the prettiest in the state. I do not want to be egotistical on the subject, but you must admit that what I say is right."

"Yes," admitted the salesman, "I agree with you."

"That is not all, either," continued our citizen, "of course I'll admit that nature has done a great deal for Clearfield, by its rich deposits in the surrounding hills, but a great deal of the honor belongs to the people. Don't you think so?"

"Well I won't comment on that, you finish talking, and I'll tell you what I think," replied the salesman.

"Well, went on our booster, politically we can not be beat. We never have any scandals or wrangles of any sort, and that is something unusual, in fact something to be proud of. Isn't it?"

"Yes, I'll agree with you again," said the salesman, "but continue, I am interested."

"Our greatest asset though is our industries, and natural resources, the hills abound with clay and coal, giving employment to many men. Our factories work full time the year around, and there is not a town anywhere that has better sanitation."

"We can boast of convenient railroad facilities, a well equipped hospital, with competent and efficient nurses and doctors, fine hotels for the accommodation of travelers, healthy climate, pure water, up-to-date stores, whose proprietors are very considerate of their employees, such as giving them vacations at half and full pay, and during the summer season closing the stores at 5 o'clock. I think this is a very praiseworthy act."

"Socially the town speaks for itself."

"I see," contemplated the salesman, "that if I would leave you go on, you would never quit. Although I agree with you in everything, there is one version you omitted, and it is important too, in a way a business getter."

"What have you in Clearfield that attracts, and when attracted, what have you to entertain, or in other words what have you to draw people to Clearfield? Nothing! Movies continually, grow tiresome, and speaking for myself as well as for others of my occupation I confess to you we find Clearfield dead, and we find time spent here very dreary. I do not see how the grown-ups tolerate such a complete lack of spirit. It should be your aim to draw people to your town, and live it up, and I really pity and sympathize with the younger people for they surely must find time dull on their hands."

"Clearfield reminds me of a saying 'Not dead but Sleeping.' Condensing it, it means, 'You could if you wanted to.'"

"Now, don't you think I am right?" inquired the salesman.

"Yes," slowly answered our booster, "I never thought of that before."

"Now understand I am not a knocker, and I have nothing whatever against Clearfield, but I tell you this without any partiality or discrimination, in fact just as I see things, and I am sure, that what I have said, is backed by many others, for I have heard many opinions expressed in regard to Clearfield during my semi-monthly visits to Clearfield."

"How would you remedy this," our citizen asked?

"Why that is easy," replied the salesman. "A concert by the town's musicians two or three times a month. If you have them often they would grow monotonous. Have your park improved, good decent dancing, under proper management would live things up occasionally. Have them for young and old, open air movies, the others are to stuff this kind of weather, a pavillion where you can read or get light refreshments, make it a paying proposition not any expenditure without returns. All the above ideas is used in moderation would be a source of entertainment forever. Proper celebration of holidays would also help."

"Now the business men would have to start it, and the co-operation of the people would make it a success, I mean financially as well as every other way."

"Now friend," again asked the salesman, "Am I right?"

"Yes," replied our citizen, "I believe you are."

CROWDS JOIN IN HUNT FOR SHARKS ON JERSEY COAST

Matawan, N. J., July 15.—(Crowds of pleasure seekers who would ordinarily spend their Saturday afternoons at the beaches, are expected to flock here today to join in New Jersey's game of shark hunting. There is little hope held out that the big fish which has killed four persons within the last fortnight will now be caught. The funerals of Lester Stillwell and Stanley Fisher the shark's most recent victims, were held here today.

MECCA CITY IS TAKEN BY THE ARABIAN REBELS

Cairo, July 15.—(By United Press)—Cairo the City of the Mecca, the most holy place of the Mohammedan world, surrendered to the Arabian rebels, according to dispatches received here today. The Turkish garrison of 2,800 men and officer laid down their arms.

CASES OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS ARE DECREASING

New York, July 15.—(By United Press)—The number of new cases of infantile paralysis again showed a falling off in a report issued by the Health Commissioner's office today. During past 24 hours only 144 new cases have been reported, comparing with 162 for the previous 24 hours. The number of deaths reported were 27 as compared with 31 deaths reported yesterday. The cool weather for the last 48 hours have aided in the fight against the disease.

AUTO COMPANY HEAD COMMITS SUICIDE TODAY

New York, July 15.—(By United Press)—Paul Smith, vice president and general manager of the Chalmers Motor company of Detroit, killed himself today by jumping from the 10th floor of the Hotel Belmont where he was a guest. Smith came to New York accompanied by his wife for medical treatment. He had been suffering from ptomaine poisoning.

AMERICAN DIES TO HELP THE ALLIES

A. Goodwill Spalding, adopted son of the late A. G. Spalding, was killed in action with the Immiskillen Fusiliers this month. He was on business in England when the war broke out and he promptly enlisted as a private in the Coldstream guards in December 1915, he was made a lieutenant for meritorious conduct under fire and then went to the fusiliers.

DEUTSCHLAND WILL BE CONSIDERED A PEACEFUL VESSEL

Washington, July 15.—(By United Press)—The State Department announced today that it considers Deutschland a peaceful ship "in view of the facts in the case." There will be no final decision by acting Secretary of State Polk. Polk notified Secretary of Treasury McAdoo informally of his opinion. The state department announced that the decision may not make a precedent and that the arrival of another submarine liner would be treated as a separate and independent case.

ENTIRE CREW OF COLLIER HECTOR REPORTED SAVED

Charleston, S. C., July 15.—(By United Press)—When the naval collier Hector was broken in two by yesterday's storm was abandoned late last night, a radio message today brought word to the Navy Yard that all on board had been saved. The crew of the collier and the marines carried by the Hector were taken aboard the tug Wilmington and the light house tender Cypress shortly before daylight. The crew left the Hector at 12 45 a. m. seven miles northeast of Cape Romane, and when last the ship was seen was a total wreck.

All who were aboard including D. F. Newall her master, are proceeding to Charleston by the rescue vessels. The Hector had left Port Royal for San Domingo carrying marines recruits for the latter place and Cuba. She attempted to come into port here when the storm disabled her and according to Captain Hun, was unable to get further than within 9 1/2 miles of the Charleston light ship before sinking. The Hector carried a crew of 12 officers and 50 men and 60 marines.

Washington, July 15.—(By United Press)—Three men were injured two seriously, before the crew and marines aboard the wrecked Collier Hector was abandoned at Charleston, a navy department radiogram stated today. The chief engineer and one fireman were seriously injured and the ship carpenter's leg was broken.

At last the day for awarding the $50 in added cash prizes in The Progress great automobile contest is here and at 10 o'clock the special accounting of votes to determine the happy winners of the gold prizes will be started. This time has been anxiously looked forward to, and all of the contestants have been making elaborate preparations for the tremendous rush of voting that is sure to come tonight.

Within the few short hours that remain for the voting, before the closing hour this evening, will be deposited the votes that will name the winners of the $25, $15 and $10 prizes, and in this manner will be designated the three ambitious individuals who have made the greatest strides towards the winning of the automobile and the other grand contest awards, during the week that has just passed. Just who will make the best showing in the subscription getting at this time, lead the field and carry off the first cash prize, is a matter of intense interest and absolute uncertainty up to this time. All of the candidates have apparently been running quite close in the voting so far and any one of them may wing the pendulum of fortune to their quarter. The voting from all sections of the contest territory has been very heavy throughout the day and this evening is sure to be the greatest rush of voting thus far experienced in the contest. There will be many surprises in the voting, the vote deposit will far surpass all expectations and the candidate who can bring the greatest surprise and the greatest number of votes secured and deposited for the week is the one that is going to win that $25 in cash.

The vote and subscription getting efforts of all of the contestants for the past week has been of a most strenuous and systematic character and it looks as if all of the vote getters are bent on the same purpose of winning the $25 prize. Up until The Progress went to press this afternoon the subscriptions have been pouring in from all candidates and most of the contestants have, during the past few days, far surpassed their previous vote getting records for a similar length of time. This rapid increase in the voting is largely due to the longer length subscriptions that are now coming in and to the many long term extensions that are being made on subscriptions turned in during the first voting period of the campaign. The bonus votes, also, will play an important part in determining the prize winners and the greater number of the contestants will have several of the $30 clubs for the bonus votes on subscriptions secured during this week. The rally for supremacy at the close of this special period of the campaign promises to be the most exciting yet experienced and will only be surpassed by the final hours of the voting for the Overland automobile and other prizes one week from tonight.

Many Volunteer Subscribers. Many persons have signed at the Progress office during the past few days to make voluntary subscription payments to the vote credit of the various candidates, and many more persons, both new and old subscribers, will call and for the week before the voting closes, o'clock tonight. The main reason for this has been the fact that the contestants have been daily bringing their own clipped votes, subscriptions and wishes for all of the contestants of the entire campaign has reached a degree of interest and activity undreamed of a few short weeks ago.

A number of the contestants as well as many of their anxious friends and co-workers have made inquiry as to how high the votes are likely to go for the special prizes tonight. To all of these questions we can simply say that we have no idea and no means of knowing how high the voting may go, and of course could give no information of this kind if we did know. The one thing that is certain, however, is that the vote deposit for the week will be very much heavier than anyone expected for this time. This is assured by the splendid success had by all contestants during the week and more especially by the rush of voting today.

Three Sure to Win. Some three of the active contestants in this Progress campaign are sure to be the winners of these substantial cash prizes tonight. Of course not all of the active contestants can be winners at this time and some are destined to lose just as others are sure to win this first rally and test in the big campaign. If all contestants do their best, at this time however, they can win or lose with the same feeling of satisfaction and then rally their forces for the voting that is to determine the $1,400 prize winners. It, of course, must not be supposed that because any candidate is not a winner of one of the cash prizes that they will win one of the leading prizes next week, and neither is there any certainty that the winners of the cash prizes will be the winners of the automobile and the other top prizes at the end of the race. What really will determine the success of the contestants in the final onslaught of voting the efforts of themselves and their friends at this time as well as during the remaining days of the contest.

The active contestants in the competition for the cash prizes as well as for the grand prizes next week are all running so close in the voting at this time that any candidate may be the high winner in either week. Isn't it well worth the effort?

Why will people buy ham from a house can-

PROGRESSIVE EMPORIUM.

Judging by Tuesday's special election held at Em-
porium, when the people of that town want a thing they
want it—and know how to get it.

Emporium's main street is about a mile and a half long. It needs to be paved to put in in condition for handling traffic easily at all seasons of the year. To wait
until the money would be available from taxation would
be a long process, and in the meantime any advantage
which Emporium might gain through the paving of its
main street (and the advantages gained through good
paved streets are manifold) would be lost.

Therefore, it was decided to put the proposition up
to the people, and on Tuesday they voted on the question
of issuing $40,000 worth of bonds to finance the paving
operation.

Note the result: There were but ten votes registered
against the proposition, while 440 were polled for the
bond issue.

The people of Emporium are progressive and know
how to get what they want.

A bond issue distributes the burden. It is right that those of the future who will enjoy the benefits of the foresight of those of the present should help pay the bill.
That's the way Emporium looks at it. It is the sensible
view.—Lock Haven Express.

Today's Geographic Study of
The Great European War Zone

Peronne, the first important objective of the French and English forces
when the allies' "big push" was in-
augurated, is described in today's war
geography bulletin of the National Geographic society as follows:

"The important railway center of Peronne, rich with historic associations
of ancient and medieval France, was
a town of less than 5,000 people at the
outbreak of the war, and it has little
industrial or commercial significance,
but for nearly three hundred years it
bore an honored name de guerre. La Pucelle, (The Impregnable), this distinction having been accorded it in 1536 when the courageous woman,
Marie Fouré, also known as Catherine
de Poix, successfully defended it
against the imperial forces of Charles
V commanded by the court of Nassau.
The title 'impregnable' was dropped
by the city in 1815, however, for in
that year it was captured by the Duke
of Wellington. Its name stands high
among the cities of courage in the Franco-German war, during which it
withstood a destructive bombardment
of 12 days and only capitulated because the civil population was being
decimated by an epidemic of smallpox.

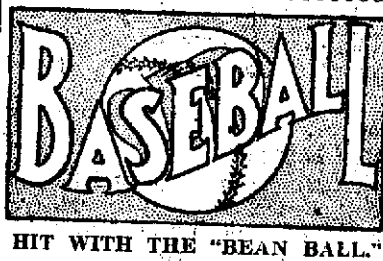

"The French maintained Peronne as
a small military stronghold until ten
years ago when its fortifications were
razed, but up to the time of the on-
ward sweep of the Germans toward Paris in the summer of 1914 the four-
towered castle was still standing and
visitors were shown the cell in which,
in the tenth century, the unhappy
French king, Charles the Simple, possessed himself of Louis the Hammer,
was starved to death. Charles was
kept a prisoner here by the treacher-
ous Herbert, Count of Vermandois,
who had promised to aid the sovereign

against Rudolph, Duke of Burgundy.

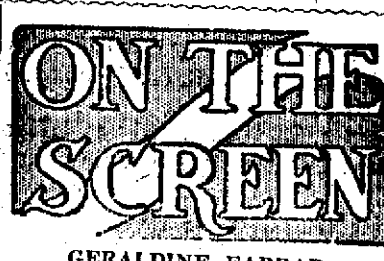

"Peronne was the scene of another
act of treachery against a French
ruler five hundred years later when
the 'bourgeois' king, Louis XI, trust-
ing to the diplomacy of gold, visited
Charles the Bold. Two days after
Louis' arrival in Peronne on a mission of conciliation, there came the
news of a supposed massacre of the
bishop and ducal governor of Liege.
The rumor was false, but Charles, sus-
pecting Louis of double-dealing, threw
the king in prison and kept him in a
cell until he consented to sign the
'Treaty of Peronne,' insuring all Flan-
ders freedom from the jurisdiction of
the parliament in Paris. This treaty
was then ostentatiously episode in
Louis' life, for the people of Picardy
taught their tame jays and magpies to
cry 'Peronne' and 'Perette' in derision
of the sovereign. Thoroughly mortif-
ied, Louis determined to find a scape-
goat and Cardinal Jean Balue was the unhappy victim. Balue fled and joined Harancourt, bishop of Verdun, in revolt. Both were captured, and Balue
was kept a prisoner for 11 years while Harancourt was confined in an iron
cage, like a wild beast, for 13 years.

"The history of Peronne goes back
to the days of the Frankish king
Clovis II, who owned a villa here and
who gave it to his mayor of the palace, Erchinacius, founder of the monastery of St. Pury in the seventh century. It received its charter from
the French crown in 1203.

"The town is situated on the Somme
river, 94 miles by rail north of Paris,
and 35 miles east of Amiens. It is 20 miles by rail east of Fricourt, one
of the first villages taken by the British in their offensive which began on
the first day of July."

Lesson III.—Third Quarter, For
July 16, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xvii, 22-34.
Memory Verses, 22, 23—Golden Text,
Acts xvii, 28—Commentary Prepared
by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

While Paul waited at Athens for the
coming of Silas and Timothy he was
so stirred by the idolatry which he
saw that not only in the synagogue
did he talk to the Jews, but daily in
the market place he preached Jesus
and the resurrection to all who would
listen to him. And as they delighted
in any new thing, this was certainly
the newest they ever heard, and they
desired to hear more. So they brought
him to a public place where he could
tell them more fully of this, to them,
new doctrine (verses 16-21). The
thought of the dead coming to life
again was too much for them, and
while there were some who believed
others mocked, even as they do to this
day (verses 22-34). The newest thing
to this very day is the old, old story
of salvation by the sacrifice of the Lamb of God, as told so vigorously by
Rev. William Sunday and others, but
as strenuously opposed as in the long
ago by the enemies of Christ. Seemingly intelligent men still scoff at the
resurrection of the body and the
thought of a body of flesh and bones
without blood. Ministers everywhere
do not believe that the kingdom can-
not come till Christ comes again, but
speak of it as now here, to be advanced
or extended, and the truths of last
week's lesson in reference to His coming for and with His saints are simply ridiculed. But there are some who believe God.

The people of Athens were very su-
perstitious, or, as in the R. V., margin,
religious, and seemed to worship all
the gods they had ever heard of, and
lest they might have omitted one they
had an altar with the inscription, "To
the unknown god," and this gave Paul
his topic. It is one of the saddest
truths of the ages and even of our own
time that the true God is largely unknown. "Israel doth not know," "They
know not the thoughts of the Lord,"
"Hast thou not known me, Philip?"
"O righteous Father, the world hath
not known thee" (Isa. i, 3; Mic. iv, 2; John xiv, 9; xvii, 25). God can be
known only in Jesus Christ, and therefore all who will not receive Jesus
Christ as God do not know the true
God. Speaking to gentiles, Paul began
at the beginning and told them of Him
who created all things and who there-
fore needed nothing from the creatures
whom He had made, as only in Him
do all live and move and have their
being, and He giveth to all life and
breath and all things (verses 22-23). It
must have been humiliating to these
proud and wise Greeks to be told that
they were of the same blood as other
nations and that God their Creator had
placed them on the earth just where
they were (verse 23).

It is another great truth, and but little considered, that when the Most High, the possessor of heaven and
earth, divided to the nations their inheritance He did it with reference to
the children of Israel, although they
were not then in existence (Gen. x, 25;
Deut. xxxii, 8); so that, as one has said,
both historically and geographically,
Israel is the great center. That, how-
ever, was not a truth for the people of Athens just then, for Paul desired to
lead them to the true God and to repentance. He told them of Him whom
God raised from the dead, the Creator
who had come to the world which He
had made, but was unknown in it and
rejected by it and crucified, but now
alive forevermore and appointed to be
the judge of all mankind; and not only
was the judge appointed, but also the
day, which we learn elsewhere would
cover a thousand years, for one day is
with the Lord as a thousand years and
a thousand years as one day (II Pet. iii, 8). This whole age through which we
are passing since Christ was crucified
is spoken of as an hour, and a day, and
an acceptable year (John v, 25; II Cor.
vi, 2; Luke iv, 19). The next thousand
years is also called an hour, beginning
and ending with a resurrection (John
v, 29).

There shall be a resurrection both of
the just and unjust, but a thousand
years shall intervene between the two (Acts xxiv, 15; Rev. xx, 5, 6). All who
have ever lived shall come into judgment before the same Judge, but not
all at the same time. All who truly
receive the Lord Jesus can say, "I
am crucified with Christ" (Gal. ii, 20),
and have passed from death to life
and shall not come into judgment for
sin (John v, 24). But all such must
appear before the judgment seat of Christ, where only saved people shall
appear, to have their works approved
or disapproved, to be rewarded or suffer loss and to be appointed to their
places in His kingdom (Rom. xiv, 10;
II Cor. v, 10). Then we shall come
with Him to judge the living nations,
according to Matt. xxi, 31, with Joel
iii, 1, 2; Zeph. xiv, 31, and set up His kingdom. The rest of the dead who
did not rise in the first resurrection
shall be judged at the great white
throne after the thousand years (Rev.
xx, 11-15). In the face of such plain
statements I cannot understand how
any who read their Bibles with ordinary carefulness can think or speak of
all people that have ever lived standing before the great white throne. We
only need to allow the thoughts of God
to displace our thoughts.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

If a motor has a long stroke and small bore and another has a short stroke and large bore and they both have the same cubic inch displacement, what would cause the difference in power, or is there any difference? Which is considered the better?

The problem as to which stroke bore ratio is better seems to be insoluble at present, as engineers disagree on this point. Some prefer the short stroke, others adhere to the square motor, while the majority believe in the long stroke. A recent article set forth the advantages and disadvantages of the long stroke motor as follows: The advantages resulting from a careful study of the subject are: (1) smaller mechanical losses and less wear in the motor bearings; (2) better thermal efficiency in the medium long stroke type as caused by the decrease of heat losses from the cylinder and better mixing of the fresh charge at its entrance into the cylinder; (3) higher range of maximum obtainable piston speed; (4) more favorable time for high compression work; (5) better for the use of poor grades of fuel; (6) smaller loss of pressure in the cylinders due to less harmful influence on the performance of the motor because of expansion and distortion due to piston and cylinder heating; (7) accessibility of the valve mechanism due to greater space permissible for these parts; (8) better low speed performance; (9) somewhat lower temperature and pressure of the exhaust.

The disadvantages mentioned are: (1) Motor accelerates with more vibration unless extra light moving parts are used; (2) larger timing gears necessary due to the distance between the crank shaft and crank shaft to provide for connecting rod clearance (larger timing gears call for more noise, a higher peripheral velocity and added cost); (3) heavier valve mechanism parts, resulting in noisier valve action; (4) less adaptable to four cylinder motors using two bearing crank shafts and sizes using three bearings.

These advantages and disadvantages take for granted that the long and short stroke motors discussed have the same construction otherwise. The advantages of the long stroke may be considered as disadvantages of the short stroke, and vice versa.

I can't get the motor of my new car to run smoothly, although I have adjusted the carburetor in every possible way. After running the motor a few minutes I notice that some water is discharged from the exhaust pipe. The water from the radiator goes through the intake manifold. Could water get into the cylinders from that source? I strain the gasoline through a strainer and do not think it could get in that way.

Water should not come from the exhaust pipe when the engine is running. You state that the water pipe from the radiator goes through the intake manifold. If this is the case possibly one of the gaskets is defective and water is being sucked directly into the cylinders from this source.

If you cannot readily detect the water leak in any of the joints you possibly will find a sand hole in one of the castings which is leaking water. It may be necessary for you to have the cylinders taken off and tested under pressure for a water leak. A very small sand hole in a cylinder will cause you trouble and cannot readily be detected under ordinary pressure. Water in the cylinders will cause the miss in your engine irrespective of carburetor adjustment.

Will you please give me the formula for figuring the number of revolutions a gear must be turned to bring corresponding teeth marks together on timing gears set with odd teeth?

The method of figuring the number of revolutions a gear must turn to bring corresponding teeth marks together on timing gears set with odd teeth is simply to calculate the least common multiple of the number of teeth on each wheel. For instance, if one wheel has sixteen teeth and the other has ten teeth the least common multiple would be 80. Then for every eight revolutions of the ten tooth wheel or five revolutions of the sixteen tooth wheel the same teeth would come into mesh.

Would water admitted into cylinders from the intake manifold, which is then converted into steam, keep the cylinders free from carbon?

Admission of water into the intake manifold and then into the cylinders is utilized frequently to prevent deposit of carbon and to keep carbon deposits off. Many owners have found that this method gives very good results.

Will you please explain the proper timing as to opening and closing of both exhaust and intake valves and the relation of spark when full retard? What is the maximum r. p. m. if so timed?

The proper timing depends upon the speed of the motor, the size of the valves, design of the engine, and hence it would be impossible arbitrarily to give you a specific timing without knowing the engine. The maximum r. p. m. would also depend entirely on the design.

One trouble experienced in getting the motor to hit evenly when first starting up no doubt is due to improper handling of the carburetor dash adjustment. When starting the motor especially if it has been standing for any time, it is advisable to move the lever regulating the dash well down on the starting side of the dial, which practically shuts off the air passage and allows a certain amount of raw gas to be drawn into the cylinder, and after the motor becomes warm the lever gradually can be moved back toward the running side of the dial to a position on which it is found the motor runs best under ordinary conditions.

The lack of power mentioned may be due to the valves not seating properly or being incorrectly adjusted, and it would be advisable for you to have these gone over—ground in, if necessary—and when adjusting leave a .0008 inch clearance between the end of the valve stem and the face of the adjusting screw when the valve is properly seated. This adjustment should be made when the motor is cold. It also would be well to note whether the clutch is holding properly, as, if this slips on a hard pull, naturally the full benefit of the motor power is not being obtained.

Cylinder No. 2 on my four cylinder car leaks compression between the piston and the cylinder into the crank case, while the other three cylinders are as good as new. Would fitting the defective cylinder with new piston rings cause the compression to be more than the others and perhaps start vibration?

It is impossible to say whether the No. 2 cylinder would be benefited greatly by the use of new piston rings, because the leak might be due to bad scoring from the cylinder, in which case it would have to be rebored. If it is due simply to uniform wear the fitting of new piston rings, and more particularly the nonlocking type of piston rings, probably will prove a remedy. However, this leak may be caused by the slots in the piston rings coming in line, in which case new rings will not be necessary and you will need only to space the slots in the various rings so they do not come in line.

STREETS TO BE PLAYGROUNDS

New York Authorities Will Close One Hundred to Traffic This Summer.

With the intention of establishing more play streets for children this summer, the police of New York will begin at once a survey of the congested districts in the city to determine where these recreation centers are required, to decrease the number of accidents. Commissioner Woods said that he was convinced that these streets were absolutely necessary for the protection of life in the summer months.

Studies already made by the department show that although 15 per cent of the population live south of Fourteenth street, between 19 and 20 per cent of all the persons injured and killed last year lived in that section.

"With sufficient funds at hand to hire competent supervisors," Mr. Woods said, "there does not seem to be any reason why at least one hundred streets should not be closed this summer, stanchions placed to keep traffic off and the supervision of these playgrounds put into the hands of an organization similar to the parks and playgrounds."

"In this city there are 1,016,520 children between five and fifteen years old. It is estimated that of this number 632,941 must play away from home, which includes 845,009 children who live in Manhattan. It has been found that the park department, the board of education and private organizations have facilities for caring for only about two hundred thousand children."

SUCCESS IN THEIR OPINION

Barney Bernard Tells Good Story of Man Who Had Neglected an Important Point.

In the Lamb's All-Star Gambol a musical yarn was told by Barney Bernard, the Shylock of the Shakespearean minstrels. "How is your daughter Jessica?" asked the interlocutor, and Bernard's reply, stripped of its Abe Potash dialect, was: "She's been studying music in Berlin for three years. Lately she wrote that she was ready to sing in grand opera, and that she was coming home, so I arranged a concert for her at Carnegie hall. I went to several of the members of my lodge and asked them to take tickets for the concert, telling them that if my daughter was a success I would give a banquet to my friends at the Hotel Knickerbocker. When the time of the concert came, of course my daughter was nervous. She broke down and went off the key—it was terrible. The people started going out of the hall. At once I thought of the banquet, and I rushed down to the Knickerbocker to cancel the banquet. In the banquet room I found five of my friends eating and drinking champagne. 'Wait a minute,' I said. 'I told you that if my daughter was a success I would give a banquet—she was not a success, she was a failure.' Then one of my friends stood up and said, 'Well, we liked her.'"

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

MODERN ADAM MAY FIND SIX EVES IN HIS EDEN

New York, July 15.—(By United Press)—Six modern Eves of unknown identity are determined to accompany the modern Adam, Joe Knowles, when he leaves his palatial apartment here today to plunge, nude, into the woods of the Adirondack hills on another of his famous back to nature jauntures.

Knowles lives this way a month a year. When he goes in the only thing wrung about him is his expression. When he comes out he is well fed on fruits, nuts and herbs and clad in a deer skin suit.

Knowles didn't want the woman with him so he chose one of them, Mrs. Emily Davis, whose husband was killed in the fighting in Northern France recently and who is an experienced woodsman to take charge of the six Eves after he has chosen a camp for them and left preliminary instructions in the art of finding edible roots and how to make snares, traps and fish nets of grasses and fibre. This costless, unhairpinned and non-mirrored sextette of Eves will live for a month in the secret camp in the Adirondacks, then Knowles will go back to get them.

WOMEN NAVVIES BARRED FROM NAVAL CRUISE

Washington, July 15.—(By United Press)—Women are barred from the Naval Militia and Motor Boat Reserve cruise and manoeuvres scheduled to begin today among the naval militia of nineteen states under the direction of the Navy department. The cruise will last until July 29th.

The original plan was to have the battleships Maine, New Jersey, Kentucky receive the New York and New Jersey naval militia at New York, sounding to sea and to Block Island Sound and back; while the battleships Kearsage and Virginia were to go to Boston to receive the militia from Massachusetts Connecticut, Maine and Rhode Island while the battleships Alabama, Illinois and Rhode Island at Philadelphia received the militia of Illinois, Maryland, District of Columbia Michigan, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Minnesota, Missouri and Ohio, and the battleship Louisiana at Hampton Roads received the militia of Virginia, Florida, Louisiana North Carolina and Texas. But since the Mexican situation has become acute, other ships may be used for the cruise.

LIFT HORSE RACING LID IN CHICAGO TODAY

Chicago, July 15.—(By United Press)—The horse racing lid, which has been clamped on here for the last ten years, was kicked off with a bang today when a two weeks' meet opened at the old Hawthorne race track, the scene of some of America's most thrilling heats.

Three big attractions are carded for the meet: the American Derby, for which a $10,000 purse has been hung up; and the Merchants' and Gold Cup handicaps.

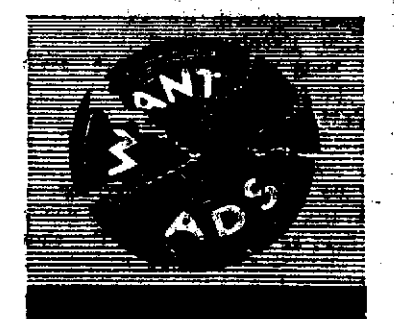

The American Derby was scheduled for today. The distance is a mile and a quarter. The purse will be divided $7,000 to the winner, $1,750 for place, $750 for show and $500 for fourth.

The revival of the Derby is hailed with joyous acclaim by the world of sports. The meet is being held under the auspices of the Illinois Jockey club, composed of a score of Chicago's merchants who are staging the meet as a feeler of public sentiment toward horse races.

WILLIAM WINTER'S 80TH BIRTHDAY.

New York, July 15.—Hundreds of names well known in dramatic, literary and journalistic circles were signed to the felicitous messages that were showered upon William Winter today to remind the venerable dramatic critic that this was the eightieth anniversary of his birth. Mr. Winter is a New Englander by birth, but virtually the whole of his active career was in connection with New York publications. With half a century of brilliant service to his credit, he was recognized as the ablest as well as the oldest dramatic critic in America at the time of his retirement from active work several years ago.

TO PRESERVE INDIANA SAND DUNES.

Chicago, July 15.—First efforts towards conserving a part of the northern Indiana sand dune wilderness for a national park will be made tomorrow, when an inter-state conference will be held at the town of Tremont, in the heart of the dunes. The rapid intrusion of industrialism is fast destroying the dunes and the wilderness has been reduced to sixty square miles. Among those actively interested in the movement to preserve a part of the region as a national park are Gov. Ralston, of Indiana, Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, Mayor Bell, of Indianapolis and Mayor Knotts, of Hammond.

INTER-LAKE YACHTERS ARE NOW READY TO RACE

Sandusky, O., July 15.—(By United Press)—Sparking breezes filled the sails of numerous yachts, hundred horse power motors roared in hydroplanes and expert swimmers and divers practised their favorite stunts in the waters of Put-In-Bay today. The Bay is alive with sportsmen here to attend the 22nd annual regatta of the Inter-Lake Yachting association, that begins tomorrow and ends July 21.

Boats of all classes, from yawls and yachts to catboats and canoes were manned by sportsmen from many mid-western cities. Power boat races have been arranged for each day of the meet. A $1,000 prize trophy will be awarded the boat winning the hydroplane event. Two races for each of the nine classes of power boats will be run. One handicap race for each class and one handicap according to the American power boat association rules is scheduled. A bang-sailed back race will include cutters, runabouts, express cruisers, open boats and hydroplanes.

Three races for each of the ten classes of yachts will be run, the first Monday. Prizes amounting to $1,500 will be awarded. In the seven-min events, central interest is in the 2-mile great lakes championship race, which is open to men and women alike.

PROHIBITIONISTS TO HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION SOON

Large Crowds Arriving Now Indicate Meeting Will Be Greatest of History

Will Meet Next Wednesday and Thursday at St. Paul — Overflow Meetings Will Be Held.

St. Paul, July 15.—Prohibitionists are beginning to arrive for the national convention to be held Wednesday and Thursday of next week and for a series of important preliminary conferences to be held during the two days preceding. The Auditorium, where the general sessions of the convention will be held, is profusely decorated in red, white and blue. Overflow meetings will be held in the Armory and the Masonic Temple.

The large number of early arrivals is only one of the many outward and visible indications of the prevailing sentiment that the coming convention is destined to be the most important in the history of the Prohibition party. Many of the party leaders even venture to predict that the convention will mark a new epoch in national politics. This year, for the first time, the party means to lay serious claims to the presidency.

Talks with the leaders already on the field substantiate the early reports to the effect that the Prohibitionists hope to step into the shoes of the late Progressive party, to become the foremost progressive party in the country. The plans along this line will come to a head at a conference to be held the day previous to the meeting of the convention, when a movement will be launched to obtain notable recruits from the ranks of the other parties.

Several men formerly prominent in the Republican, Democratic or Progressive parties already have been taken into the fold. Among them are former Gov. Sulzer, of New York; former Gov. Foss, of Massachusetts, and former Gov. Hanly, of Indiana.

Each one of these, incidentally, is mentioned for the Prohibition presidential nomination. Mr. Sulzer is said to have a large following among Jews, railway trainmen and laborers. Mr. Foss is credited by the Prohibition workers with a considerable personal following and Mr. Hanly is believed to be influential with the Methodists and attendants at Chautauquas.

Daniel Poling, a leader of the Christian Endeavor movement, and Dr. Ira Landrith, a well known Y. M. C. A. worker, and others whose names are mentioned in connection with the head of the Prohibition national ticket. The selection of a vice presidential nominee will depend largely upon what section of the country the presidential choice comes from.

In its general aspect the platform will be similar to those of other years, but if the wishes of the progressive element of the party are carried out the declarations will be much broader in scope than ever before. The main plank, of course, will call for the unqualified prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicants. A straightout suffrage plank will be included, endorsing the Susan B. Anthony amendment. The labor declarations will be more explanatory than heretofore. The danger of hyphenated Americanism will be recognized. On the subject of foreign relations the platform is expected to declare for "strict neutrality and a dignified presentment of principles based on 'America first.'"

The detailed program prepared for the week is as follows:

Monday—Young people's society conference, followed by intercollegiate oratorical contest in the evening, with contestants from eight states.

Tuesday—Conference on the "Five

Million Club" movement to obtain recruits from the old parties; mass meeting in afternoon.

Wednesday—Opening of the convention at 2 P. M., with address by Daniel A. Poling, temporary chairman; reception for suffragists, 4:30 P. M.; concert by convention chorus and orchestra, and addresses by party leaders, 8 P. M.

Thursday—Permanent organization of convention, adoption of platform, followed by prohibition parade at 4 P. M.; concert at 7:30 P. M., and mass meeting in the evening, known as "governors' night," with addresses by several former governors.

Friday—Nomination of ticket, followed by an evening concert and opening meeting of campaign, with addresses by the nominees for president and vice president, and other national leaders of the party.

RED LETTER DAY FOR CALUMET.

Calumet, Mich., July 15.—One hundred and sixty-three gold medals, with an aggregate value of nearly $25,000, were presented today to 169 employees of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company as tokens of the company's esteem for their faithful service covering a period of forty years or more. More than 1,000 employees of the company received silver medals. The presentation of the medals was but one of many interesting features in connection with the big family gathering held in celebration of the company's semi-centennial. Twenty thousand persons participated in the celebration. From Boston, where the headquarters of the company have always been maintained, came a party of several hundred that included among its members the general officers and veteran employees, together with the descendants of Alexander Agassiz and Quincy A. Shaw, the two Bostonians who first began the development of the Michigan copper mines in 1866 and whose families are still dominant in the control of the present properties.

BOSTON CHOIR BOYS TO SING AT CHAUTAUQUA

Clearfield Will Have Big Treat At Chautauqua This Year
—Program Published

DR. WIRT IS FIRST LECTURER

Sweet music such as can be sung by young boys only is the first offering of the Chautauqua which opens here on Friday July 28th and as this is one of the stellar attractions big ten will be certain to be filled to capacity for the first performance. The Choir Boys of Boston, nine of them, will sing for us both afternoon and night.

The program as issued is not quite clear but it is supposed that the Choir Boys will give a short concert at the afternoon performance and that Dr. Wirt will give his lecture "The conquest of the Arctic" immediately following. Dr. Wirt's subject is not dry by any means. Nearly twenty years ago he was one of those who were drawn to the great cold land and in his lecture he tells the wonderful story of three years of adventure and exploration by canoe, snow shoes and dog train. A lecture that will fill you with thrills.

In the evening the Choir Boys will give a full and complete concert. A feature will be the presentation of "The Angelus" with special scenery and vestments. Another feature is the rendition of the popular songs of the typical American boy.

Clearfield is to have a great treat in the Chautauqua that comes here this season. The program is full of the best there is to offer in this popular enterprise. That the people will respond to it is an established fact and that they are growing more in favor of this kind of entertainment every year is shown by the increased enthusiasm shown by the people back of it. From day to day from now on this paper will call attention to the various attractions that will appear here with the Chautauqua and it is hoped that all will take an active interest in it. The Chautauqua is the most refined and best kind of entertainment that can be provided and no other institution offers the same range of instructive entertainment and amusement for any thing near like the cost.

The Presbyterians and the Baptists from the western part of the state will hold their annual reunions the same day this year at Lakemont park near Altoona, on Thursday, July 20th. A special train will go from Curwensville straight to the park, returning after the evening services, if enough will signify their intention of going. Already Philipsburg has a hundred pledged to go. M. Curwensville and Clearfield can pledge fifty, the special is assured. We ought to be able to do it. The return fare is $2.20. Notify either Rev. E. C. Reeve or W. P. Sheeder before tomorrow noon if you expect to go. It is necessary for Philipsburg to know tomorrow what Clearfield and Curwensville can do.

SIoux INDIANS ARE ON THE WATER WAGON FOR GOOD

St. Paul, Minn., July 15.—(By United Press)—Mata Ciquana, full blooded Sioux Indian, is on his way here today to tell the Prohibition National convention delegates that the Sioux are on the water wagon for good and all. Mata will recount in a speech how "Minnie Qachen" which is the Sioux for "Mysterious Water", has cursed the tribe for years, but is now and for some time has been cursed by the bucks.

Ciquana, called by his tribesmen "Little Bear" because he is six feet tall, almost as broad and weighs 220 pounds, is an author, farmer, stenographer, printer, traveler and a baseball and football fan.

His business name is de Witt Hare and he owns 200 acres of $50 land near Wagner, S. D. He is a Presbyterian, a temperance advocate and a graduate of Huron, S. D., college.

PRESIDENT NOMINATES JUDGE

Washington, July 15.—(By United Press)—President Woodrow Wilson has nominated Congressman James Hay of Virginia, to be judge on the United States court of appeals.

BRITISH PUSH BACK GERMANS ON LONG FRONT

Over Three Thousand Prisoners Captured by Allies in 24 Hours of Fighting

THE GERMANS ARE RETREATING

London, July 15.—(By United Press)—The Germans at one point have been forced back to the third line of their defense under the massive British flows four miles behind their original front, General Haig reported to the war office this afternoon. "All is well at the British front," said an official statement. "We have pushed our rear from Fricourt to Mametz capturing 3,000 prisoners in 24 hours."

Since the beginning of the offensive, the total number of prisoners is now 10,000. In addition we have taken large quantities of material. The reference to the advance by the rear from Fricourt to Mametz emphasized the gains made by the British in the fighting yesterday.

The first and second British lines apparently have advanced well beyond Mametz, with the third running through Trones Woods where desperate fighting occurred. Special dispatches from Paris this afternoon reported that the Germans have retired on the French front adjoining the British to the Guillemont-Albert-Comieles railway. The retreat was made necessary by the British advance.

Berlin, July 15.—"Despite severe losses, the British succeeded in penetrating our lines between Pozieres and Longueval, gaining ground and occupying Trones Wood," said an official statement issued this afternoon.

An Italian destroyer of the Indomito type was sunk last Monday afternoon by an Austrian submarine, according to official statement from the Austrian Admiralty received here today.

PLAN TO DOUBLE SIZE OF SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, July 15.—(By United Press)—A plan to more than double the area of San Francisco is to be considered by a municipal committee here today and reported on not later than August 1. It is an annexation project similar to the borough system in New York city.

From San Francisco southward along what is known as the peninsula extends an almost uninterrupted line of small municipalities including Redwood city, San Mateo, Burlingame, Daly City, Menlo Park, South San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

Representative committees have been appointed to draft a bill for presentation to the legislature, authorizing the incorporation. This committee includes officials of the cities and towns involved. Better water and transportation are among the inducements offered.

Misses Emily Gaulin, Pauline Neff, Evelyn Smith, Edna Froyd, Ethel Boyce and Miss Ruth Wrigley chaperoned by Mrs. Carrie Smith left today for a two week's camping trip at Camp Mahaffey, near Mahaffey. This is an ideal location for a girl's camp as it furnishes excellent bathing and boating facilities. The house is large and commodious and convenient.

MEDIA LADY GUEST OF HONOR AT BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. G. Webb Shillingford entertained at auction bridge yesterday afternoon at her home on Old Town Road in honor of her guest, Mrs. Beebe, of Media, Pa. Three tables of progressive bridge were in play. Miss Mary Swoope, of Curwensville, took the head prize and Mrs. William Bigler, the second prize.

BRITISH STEAMER GROUND IN PATH OF DEUTSCHLAND

Norfolk, Va., July 15.—(By United Press)—The British steamer Junion is grounded near Cape Henry not far from the Channel through which the German submarine Deutschland must pass in her coming dash to sea. The Junion is in no danger, but coast cutter Onondago and several tugs have gone to her assistance.

Editors Note: The following communication came to our desk a few days ago. Having so many good points in it we pass it on.

A TRIBUTE AND A KNOCK

Recently on the 6 o'clock train I had the good-luck and misfortune to hear two men discuss Clearfield, socially, politically, industrially, etc. One is a citizen of our town, and a booster, the other an impartial married salesman.

The following is a reproduction of the conversation as near as I remember it:

Our townsman started with: "Do you know my friend, Clearfield is the most beautiful town in Central Pennsylvania, and one of the prettiest in the state. I do not want to be egotistical on the subject, but you must admit that what I say is right."

"That is not all, either," continued our citizen, "of course I'll admit that nature has done a great deal for Clearfield, by its rich deposits in the surrounding hills, but a great deal of the honor belongs to the people. Don't you think so?"

"Well I won't comment on that, you finish talking, and I'll tell you what I think," replied the salesman.

"Well, went on our booster, politically we can not be beat. We never have any scandals or wrangles of any sort, and that is something unusual, in fact something to be proud of. Isn't it?"

"Yes, I'll agree with you again," said the salesman, "but continue, I am interested."

"Our greatest asset though is our industries, and natural resources, the hills abound with clay and coal, giving employment to many men. Our factories work full time the year around, and there is not a town anywhere that has better sanitation."

"We can boast of convenient railroad facilities, a well equipped hospital, with competent and efficient nurses and doctors, fine hotels for the accommodation of travelers, healthy climate, pure water, up-to-date stores, whose proprietors are very considerate of their employees, such as giving them vacations at half and full pay, and during the summer season closing the stores at 5 o'clock. I think this is a very praiseworthy act."

"Socially the town speaks for itself."

"I see," contemplated the salesman, "that if I would leave you go on, you would never quit. Although I agree with you in everything, there is one version you omitted, and it is important too, in a way a business getter."

"What have you in Clearfield that attracts, and when attracted, what have you to entertain, or in other words what have you to draw people to Clearfield? Nothing! Movies continually, grow tiresome, and speaking for myself as well as for others of my occupation I confess to you we find Clearfield dead, and we find time spent here very dreary. I do not see how the grown-ups tolerate such a complete lack of spirit. It should be your aim to draw people to your town, and live it up, and I really pity and sympathize with the younger people for they surely must find time dull on their hands."

"Clearfield reminds me of a saying 'Not dead but Sleeping.' Condensing it, it means, 'You could if you wanted to.'"

"Now, don't you think I am right?" inquired the salesman.

"Yes," slowly answered our booster, "I never thought of that before."

"Now understand I am not a knocker, and I have nothing whatever against Clearfield, but I tell you this without any partiality or discrimination, in fact just as I see things, and I am sure, that what I have said, is backed by many others, for I have heard many opinions expressed in regard to Clearfield during my semi-monthly visits to Clearfield."

"How would you remedy this," our citizen asked?

"Why that is easy," replied the salesman. "A concert by the town's musicians two or three times a month. If you have them often they would grow monotonous. Have your park improved, good decent dancing, under proper management would live things up occasionally. Have them for young and old, open air movies, the others are to stuff this kind of weather, a pavillion where you can read or get light refreshments, make it a paying proposition not any expenditure without returns. All the above ideas is used in moderation would be a source of entertainment forever. Proper celebration of holidays would also help."

"Now the business men would have to start it, and the co-operation of the people would make it a success, I mean financially as well as every other way."

"Now friend," again asked the salesman, "Am I right?"

"Yes," replied our citizen, "I believe you are."

New York, July 15.—(By United Press)—The number of new cases of infantile paralysis again showed a falling off in a report issued by the Health Commissioner's office today. During past 24 hours only 144 new cases have been reported, comparing with 162 for the previous 24 hours. The number of deaths reported were 27 as compared with 31 deaths reported yesterday. The cool weather for the last 48 hours have aided in the fight against the disease.

Charleston, S. C., July 15.—(By United Press)—When the naval collier Hector was broken in two by yesterday's storm was abandoned late last night, a radio message today brought word to the Navy Yard that all on board had been saved. The crew of the collier and the marines carried by the Hector were taken aboard the tug Wilmington and the light house tender Cypress shortly before daylight. The crew left the Hector at 12 45 a. m. seven miles northeast of Cape Romane, and when last the ship was seen was a total wreck.

All who were aboard including D. F. Newall her master, are proceeding to Charleston by the rescue vessels. The Hector had left Port Royal for San Domingo carrying marines recruits for the latter place and Cuba. She attempted to come into port here when the storm disabled her and according to Captain Hun, was unable to get further than within 9 1/2 miles of the Charleston light ship before sinking. The Hector carried a crew of 12 officers and 50 men and 60 marines.

WASHINGTON, JULY 15.—(By United Press)—Three men were injured two seriously, before the crew and marines aboard the wrecked Collier Hector was abandoned at Charleston, a navy department radiogram stated today. The chief engineer and one fireman were seriously injured and the ship carpenter's leg was broken.

At last the day for awarding the $50 in added cash prizes in The Progress great automobile contest is here and at 10 o'clock the special accounting of votes to determine the happy winners of the gold prizes will be started. This time has been anxiously looked forward to, and all of the contestants have been making elaborate preparations for the tremendous rush of voting that is sure to come tonight.

Within the few short hours that remain for the voting, before the closing hour this evening, will be deposited the votes that will name the winners of the $25, $15 and $10 prizes, and in this manner will be designated the three ambitious individuals who have made the greatest strides towards the winning of the automobile and the other grand contest awards, during the week that has just passed. Just who will make the best showing in the subscription getting at this time, lead the field and carry off the first cash prize, is a matter of intense interest and absolute uncertainty up to this time. All of the candidates have apparently been running quite close in the voting so far and any one of them may wing the pendulum of fortune to their quarter. The voting from all sections of the contest territory has been very heavy throughout the day and this evening is sure to be the greatest rush of voting thus far experienced in the contest. There will be many surprises in the voting, the vote deposit will far surpass all expectations and the candidate who can bring the greatest surprise and the greatest number of votes secured and deposited for the week is the one that is going to win that $25 in cash.

The vote and subscription getting efforts of all of the contestants for the past week has been of a most strenuous and systematic character and it looks as if all of the vote getters are bent on the same purpose of winning the $25 prize. Up until The Progress went to press this afternoon the subscriptions have been pouring in from all candidates and most of the contestants have, during the past few days, far surpassed their previous vote getting records for a similar length of time. This rapid increase in the voting is largely due to the longer length subscriptions that are now coming in and to the many long term extensions that are being made on subscriptions turned in during the first voting period of the campaign. The bonus votes, also, will play an important part in determining the prize winners and the greater number of the contestants will have several of the $30 clubs for the bonus votes on subscriptions secured during this week. The rally for supremacy at the close of this special period of the campaign promises to be the most exciting yet experienced and will only be surpassed by the final hours of the voting for the Overland automobile and other prizes one week from tonight.

Many Volunteer Subscribers. Many persons have signed at the Progress office during the past few days to make voluntary subscription payments to the vote credit of the various candidates, and many more persons, both new and old subscribers, will call and for the week before the voting closes, o'clock tonight. This means, too, been daily bringing their own clipped votes, subscriptions and wishes for all of the contestants of the entire campaign has reached a degree of interest and activity undreamed of a few short weeks ago.

A number of the contestants as well as many of their anxious friends and co-workers have made inquiry as to how high the votes are likely to go for the special prizes tonight. To all of these questions we can simply say that we have no idea and no means of knowing how high the voting may go, and of course could give no information of this kind if we did know. The one thing that is certain, however, is that the vote deposit for the week will be very much heavier than anyone expected for this time. This is assured by the splendid success had by all contestants during the week and more especially by the rush of voting today.

Three Sure to Win. Some three of the active contestants in this Progress campaign are sure to be the winners of these substantial cash prizes tonight. Of course not all of the active contestants can be winners at this time and some are destined to lose just as others are sure to win this first rally and test in the big campaign. If all contestants do their best, at this time however, they can win or lose with the same feeling of satisfaction and then rally their forces for the voting that is to determine the $1,400 prize winners. It, of course, must not be supposed that because any candidate is not a winner of one of the cash prizes that they will win one of the leading prizes next week, and neither is there any certainty that the winners of the cash prizes will be the winners of the automobile and the other top prizes at the end of the race. What really will determine the success of the contestants in the final onslaught of votes the efforts of themselves and their friends at this time as well as during the remaining days of the contest.

The active contestants in the competition for the cash prizes as well as for the grand prizes next week are all running so close in the voting at this time that any candidate may be the high winner in either week. Isn't it well worth the effort?

Why will people buy ham from a house can-

PROGRESSIVE EMPORIUM.

Judging by Tuesday's special election held at Em-
porium, when the people of that town want a thing they
want it—and know how to get it.

Emporium's main street is about a mile and a half
long. It needs to be paved to put in in condition for handling traffic easily at all seasons of the year. To wait
until the money would be available from taxation would
be a long process, and in the meantime any advantage
which Emporium might gain through the paving of its
main street (and the advantages gained through good
paved streets are manifold) would be lost.

Therefore, it was decided to put the proposition up
to the people, and on Tuesday they voted on the question
of issuing $40,000 worth of bonds to finance the paving
operation.

Note the result: There were but ten votes registered
against the proposition, while 440 were polled for the
bond issue.

The people of Emporium are progressive and know
how to get what they want.

A bond issue distributes the burden. It is right that
those of the future who will enjoy the benefits of the fore-
sight of those of the present should help pay the bill.
That's the way Emporium looks at it. It is the sensible
view.—Lock Haven Express.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

Peronne, the first important objec-
tive of the French and English forces
when the allies' "big push" was in-
augurated, is described in today's war
geography bulletin of the National Geographic society as follows:

"The important railway center of Peronne, rich with historic associations
of ancient and medieval France, was
a town of less than 5,000 people at the
outbreak of the war, and it has little
industrial or commercial significance,
but for nearly three hundred years it
bore an honored name de guerre. La
Pucelle, (The Impregnable), this dis-
tinction having been accorded it in 1536 when the courageous woman,
Marie Fouré, also known as Catherine
de Poix, successfully defended it
against the imperial forces of Charles
V commanded by the court of Nassau.
The title 'impregnable' was dropped
by the city in 1815, however, for in
that year it was captured by the Duke
of Wellington. Its name stands high
among the cities of courage in the Franco-German war, during which it
withstood a destructive bombardment
of 12 days and only capitulated be-
cause the civil population was being
decimated by an epidemic of smallpox.

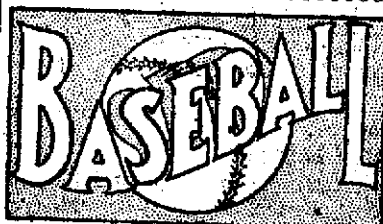

"The French maintained Peronne as
a small military stronghold until ten
years ago when its fortifications were
razed, but up to the time of the on-
ward sweep of the Germans toward
Paris in the summer of 1914 the four-
towered castle was still standing and
visitors were shown the cell in which,
in the tenth century, the unhappy
French king, Charles the Simple, possessed son of Louis the Hammerer,
was starved to death. Charles was
kept a prisoner here by the treacher-
ous Herbert, Count of Vermandois,
who had promised to aid the sovereign

against Rudolph, Duke of Burgundy.

"Peronne was the scene of another
act of treachery against a French
ruler five hundred years later when
the 'bourgeois' king, Louis XI, trust-
ing to the diplomacy of gold, visited
Charles the Bold. Two days after
Louis' arrival in Peronne on a mission of conciliation, there came the
news of a supposed massacre of the
bishop and ducal governor of Liege.
The rumor was false, but Charles, sus-
pecting Louis of double-dealing, threw
the king in prison and kept him in a
cell until he consented to sign the
'Treaty of Peronne,' insuring all Flan-
ders freedom from the jurisdiction of
the parliament in Paris. This treaty
was then ostentatiously episode in
Louis' life, for the people of Picardy
taught their tame jays and magpies to
cry 'Peronne' and 'Perette' in derision
of the sovereign. Thoroughly mortif-
ied, Louis determined to find a scape-
goat and Cardinal Jean Balue was the
unhappy victim. Balue fled and joined Harancourt, bishop of Verdun, in re-
volt. Both were captured, and Balue
was kept a prisoner for 11 years while Harancourt was confined in an iron
cage, like a wild beast, for 13 years.

"The history of Peronne goes back
to the days of the Frankish king
Clovis II, who owned a villa here and
who gave it to his mayor of the palace, Erchinakus, founder of the monastery of St. Pury in the seventh
century. It received its charter from
the French crown in 1203.

"The town is situated on the Somme
river, 94 miles by rail north of Paris,
and 35 miles east of Amiens. It is 20 miles by rail east of Fricourt, one
of the first villages taken by the Brit-
ish in their offensive which began on
the first day of July."

Lesson III.—Third Quarter, For
July 16, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xvii, 22-34.
Memory Verses, 22, 23—Golden Text,
Acts xvii, 28—Commentary Prepared
by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

While Paul waited at Athens for the
coming of Silas and Timothy he was
so stirred by the idolatry which he
saw that not only in the synagogue
did he talk to the Jews, but daily in
the market place he preached Jesus
and the resurrection to all who would
listen to him. And as they delighted
in any new thing, this was certainly
the newest they ever heard, and they
him to a public place where he could
tell them more fully of this, to them,
new doctrine (verses 16-21). The
thought of the dead coming to life
again was too much for them, and
while there were some who believed
others mocked, even as they do to this
day (verses 32-34). The newest thing
to this very day is the old, old story
of salvation by the sacrifice of the Lamb of God, as told so vigorously by
Rev. William Sunday and others, but
as strenuously opposed as in the long
ago by the enemies of Christ. Seem-
ingly intelligent men still scoff at the
resurrection of the body and the
thought of a body of flesh and bones
without blood. Ministers everywhere
do not believe that the kingdom can-
not come till Christ comes again, but
speak of it as now here, to be advanced
or extended, and the truths of last
week's lesson in reference to His com-
ing for and with His saints are simply ridiculed. But there are some who
believe God.

The people of Athens were very su-
perstitious, or, as in the R. V., margin,
religious, and seemed to worship all
the gods they had ever heard of, and
lest they might have omitted one they
had an altar with the inscription, "To
the unknown god," and this gave Paul
his topic. It is one of the saddest
truths of the ages and even of our own
time that the true God is largely un-
known. "Israel doth not know," "They
know not the thoughts of the Lord,"
"Hast thou not known me, Philip?"
"O righteous Father, the world hath
not known thee" (Isa. i, 3; Mic. iv, 2; John xiv, 9; xvii, 25). God can be
known only in Jesus Christ, and there-
fore all who will not receive Jesus
Christ as God do not know the true
God. Speaking to gentiles, Paul began
at the beginning and told them of Him
who created all things and who there-
fore needed nothing from the creatures
whom He had made, as only in Him
do all live and move and have their
being, and He giveth to all life and
breath and all things (verses 22-23). It
must have been humiliating to these
proud and wise Greeks to be told that
they were of the same blood as other
nations and that God their Creator had
placed them on the earth just where
they were (verse 23).

It is another great truth, and but little considered, that when the Most High, the possessor of heaven and
earth, divided to the nations their in-
heritance He did it with reference to
the children of Israel, although they
were not then in existence (Gen. x, 25;
Deut. xxxii, 8); so that, as one has said,
both historically and geographically,
Israel is the great center. That, how-
ever, was not a truth for the people of Athens just then, for Paul desired to
lead them to the true God and to repentance. He told them of Him whom
God raised from the dead, the Creator
who had come to the world which He
had made, but was unknown in it and
rejected by it and crucified, but now
alive forevermore and appointed to be
the judge of all mankind; and not only
was the judge appointed, but also the
day, which we learn elsewhere would
cover a thousand years, for one day is
with the Lord as a thousand years and
a thousand years as one day (II Pet. iii,
8). This whole age through which we
are passing since Christ was crucified
is spoken of as an hour, and a day, and
an acceptable year (John v, 25; II Cor.
vi, 2; Luke iv, 19). The next thousand
years is also called an hour, beginning
and ending with a resurrection (John
v, 29).

There shall be a resurrection both of
the just and unjust, but a thousand
years shall intervene between the two (Acts xxiv, 15; Rev. xx, 5, 6). All who
have ever lived shall come into judgment before the same Judge, but not
all at the same time. All who truly
receive the Lord Jesus can say, "I
am crucified with Christ" (Gal. ii, 20),
and have passed from death to life
and shall not come into judgment for
sin (John v, 24). But all such must
appear before the judgment seat of Christ, where only saved people shall
appear, to have their works approved
or disapproved, to be rewarded or suf-
fer loss and to be appointed to their
places in His kingdom (Rom. xiv, 10;
II Cor. v, 10). Then we shall come
with Him to judge the living nations,
according to Matt. xxi, 31, with Joel
iii, 1, 2; Zeph. xiv, 31, and set up His
kingdom. The rest of the dead who
did not rise in the first resurrection
shall be judged at the great white
throne after the thousand years (Rev.
xx, 11-15). In the face of such plain
statements I cannot understand how
any who read their Bibles with ordinary carefulness can think or speak of
all people that have ever lived stand-
ing before the great white throne. We
only need to allow the thoughts of God
to displace our thoughts.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

If a motor has a long stroke and small bore and another has a short stroke and large bore and they both have the same cubic inch displacement, what would cause the difference in power, or is there any difference? Which is considered the better?

The problem as to which stroke bore ratio is better seems to be insoluble at present, as engineers disagree on this point. Some prefer the short stroke, others adhere to the square motor, while the majority believe in the long stroke. A recent article set forth the advantages and disadvantages of the long stroke motor as follows: The advantages resulting from a careful study of the subject are: (1) smaller mechanical losses and less wear in the motor bearings; (2) better thermal efficiency in the medium long stroke type as caused by the decrease of heat losses from the cylinder and better mixing of the fresh charge at its entrance into the cylinder; (3) higher range of maximum obtainable piston speed; (4) more favorable time for high compression work; (5) better for the use of poor grades of fuel; (6) smaller loss of pressure in the cylinders due to less harmful influence on the performance of the motor because of expansion and distortion due to piston and cylinder heating; (7) accessibility of the valve mechanism due to greater space permissible for these parts; (8) better low speed performance; (9) somewhat lower temperature and pressure of the exhaust.

The disadvantages mentioned are: (1) Motor accelerates with more vibration unless extra light moving parts are used; (2) larger timing gears necessary due to the distance between the crank shaft and crank shaft to provide for connecting rod clearance (larger timing gears call for more noise, a higher peripheral velocity and added cost); (3) heavier valve mechanism parts, resulting in noisier valve action; (4) less adaptable to four cylinder motors using two bearing crank shafts and sizes using three bearings.

These advantages and disadvantages take for granted that the long and short stroke motors discussed have the same construction otherwise. The advantages of the long stroke may be considered as disadvantages of the short stroke, and vice versa.

I can't get the motor of my new car to run smoothly, although I have adjusted the carburetor in every possible way. After running the motor a few minutes I notice that some water is discharged from the exhaust pipe. The water from the radiator goes through the intake manifold. Could water get into the cylinders from that source? I strain the gasoline through a strainer and do not think it could get in that way.

Water should not come from the exhaust pipe when the engine is running. You state that the water pipe from the radiator goes through the intake manifold. If this is the case possibly one of the gaskets is defective and water is being sucked directly into the cylinders from this source.

If you cannot readily detect the water leak in any of the joints you possibly will find a sand hole in one of the castings which is leaking water. It may be necessary for you to have the cylinders taken off and tested under pressure for a water leak. A very small sand hole in a cylinder will cause you trouble and cannot readily be detected under ordinary pressure. Water in the cylinders will cause the miss in your engine irrespective of carburetor adjustment.

Will you please give me the formula for figuring the number of revolutions a gear must be turned to bring corresponding teeth marks together on timing gears set with odd teeth?

The method of figuring the number of revolutions a gear must turn to bring corresponding teeth marks together on timing gears set with odd teeth is simply to calculate the least common multiple of the number of teeth on each wheel. For instance, if one wheel has sixteen teeth and the other has ten teeth the least common multiple would be 80. Then for every eight revolutions of the ten tooth wheel or five revolutions of the sixteen tooth wheel the same teeth would come into mesh.

Would water admitted into cylinders from the intake manifold, which is then converted into steam, keep the cylinders free from carbon?

Admission of water into the intake manifold and then into the cylinders is utilized frequently to prevent deposit of carbon and to keep carbon deposits off. Many owners have found that this method gives very good results.

Will you please explain the proper timing as to opening and closing of both exhaust and intake valves and the relation of spark when full retard? What is the maximum r. p. m. if so timed?

The proper timing depends upon the speed of the motor, the size of the valves, design of the engine, and hence it would be impossible arbitrarily to give you a specific timing without knowing the engine. The maximum r. p. m. would also depend entirely on the design.

One trouble experienced in getting the motor to hit evenly when first starting up no doubt is due to improper handling of the carburetor dash adjustment. When starting the motor especially if it has been standing for any time, it is advisable to move the lever regulating the dash well down on the starting side of the dial, which practically shuts off the air passage and allows a certain amount of raw gas to be drawn into the cylinder, and after the motor becomes warm the lever gradually can be moved back toward the running side of the dial to a position on which it is found the motor runs best under ordinary conditions.

The lack of power mentioned may be due to the valves not seating properly or being incorrectly adjusted, and it would be advisable for you to have these gone over—ground in, if necessary—and when adjusting leave a .0008 inch clearance between the end of the valve stem and the face of the adjusting screw when the valve is properly seated. This adjustment should be made when the motor is cold. It also would be well to note whether the clutch is holding properly, as, if this slips on a hard pull, naturally the full benefit of the motor power is not being obtained.

Cylinder No. 2 on my four cylinder car leaks compression between the piston and the cylinder into the crank case, while the other three cylinders are as good as new. Would fitting the defective cylinder with new piston rings cause the compression to be more than the others and perhaps start vibration?

It is impossible to say whether the No. 2 cylinder would be benefited greatly by the use of new piston rings, because the leak might be due to bad scoring from the cylinder, in which case it would have to be rebored. If it is due simply to uniform wear the fitting of new piston rings, and more particularly the nonlocking type of piston rings, probably will prove a remedy. However, this leak may be caused by the slots in the piston rings coming in line, in which case new rings will not be necessary and you will need only to space the slots in the various rings so they do not come in line.

New York Authorities Will Close One Hundred to Traffic This Summer.

With the intention of establishing more play streets for children this summer, the police of New York will begin at once a survey of the congested districts in the city to determine where these recreation centers are required, to decrease the number of accidents. Commissioner Woods said that he was convinced that these streets were absolutely necessary for the protection of life in the summer months.

Studies already made by the department show that although 15 per cent of the population live south of Fourteenth street, between 19 and 20 per cent of all the persons injured and killed last year lived in that section.

"With sufficient funds at hand to hire competent supervisors," Mr. Woods said, "there does not seem to be any reason why at least one hundred streets should not be closed this summer, stanchions placed to keep traffic out and the supervision of these playgrounds put into the hands of an organization similar to the parks and playgrounds."

"In this city there are 1,016,520 children between five and fifteen years old. It is estimated that of this number 632,941 must play away from home, which includes 845,009 children who live in Manhattan. It has been found that the park department, the board of education and private organizations have facilities for caring for only about two hundred thousand children."

SUCCESS IN THEIR OPINION

Barney Bernard Tells Good Story of Man Who Had Neglected an Important Point.

In the Lamb's All-Star Gambol a musical yarn was told by Barney Bernard, the Shylock of the Shakespearean minstrels. "How is your daughter Jessica?" asked the interlocutor, and Bernard's reply, stripped of its Abe Potash dialect, was: "She's been studying music in Berlin for three years. Lately she wrote that she was ready to sing in grand opera, and that she was coming home, so I arranged a concert for her at Carnegie hall. I went to several of the members of my lodge and asked them to take tickets for the concert, telling them that if my daughter was a success I would give a banquet to my friends at the Hotel Knickerbocker. When the time of the concert came, of course my daughter was nervous. She broke down and went off the key—it was terrible. The people started going out of the hall. At once I thought of the banquet, and I rushed down to the Knickerbocker to cancel the banquet. In the banquet room I found five of my friends eating and drinking champagne. 'Wait a minute,' I said. 'I told you that if my daughter was a success I would give a banquet—she was not a success, she was a failure.' Then one of my friends stood up and said, 'Well, we liked her.'"

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

New York, July 15.—(By United Press)—Six modern Eves of unknown identity are determined to accompany the modern Adam, Joe Knowles, when he leaves his palatial apartment here today to plunge, nude, into the woods of the Adirondack hills on another of his famous back to nature jambourees.

Knowles lives this way a month a year. When he goes in the only thing wrapt about him is his expression. When he comes out he is well fed on fruits, nuts and herbs and clad in a deer skin suit.

Knowles didn't want the woman with him so he chose one of them, Mrs. Emily Davis, whose husband was killed in the fighting in Northern France recently and who is an experienced woodsman to take charge of the six Eves after he has chosen a camp for them and left preliminary instructions in the art of finding edible roots and how to make snares, traps and fish nets of grasses and fibre. This costless, unhairpinned and non-mirrored sextette of Eves will live for a month in the secret camp in the Adirondacks, then Knowles will go back to get them.

TO PRESERVE INDIANA SAND DUNES.

Chicago, July 15.—First efforts towards conserving a part of the northern Indiana sand dune wilderness for a national park will be made tomorrow, when an inter-state conference will be held at the town of Tremont, in the heart of the dunes. The rapid intrusion of industrialism is fast destroying the dunes and the wilderness has been reduced to sixty square miles. Among those actively interested in the movement to preserve a part of the region as a national park are Gov. Ralston, of Indiana, Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, Mayor Bell, of Indianapolis and Mayor Knotts, of Hammond.

INTER-LAKE YACHTERS ARE NOW READY TO RACE

Sandusky, O., July 15.—(By United Press)—Sparking breezes filled the sails of numerous yachts, hundred horse power motors roared in hydroplanes and expert swimmers and divers practised their favorite stunts in the waters of Put-In-Bay today. The Bay is alive with sportsmen here to attend the 22nd annual regatta of the Inter-Lake Yachting association, that begins tomorrow and ends July 21.

Boats of all classes, from yawls and yachts to catboats and canoes were manned by sportsmen from many mid-western cities. Power boat races have been arranged for each day of the meet. A $1,000 prize trophy will be awarded the boat winning the hydroplane event. Two races for each of the nine classes of power boats will be run. One handicap race for each class and one handicap according to the American power boat association rules is scheduled. A bang back race will include cutters, runabouts, express cruisers, open sports and hydroplanes.

Three races for each of the ten classes of yachts will be run, the first Monday. Prizes amounting to $1,500 will be awarded. In the seven-min events, central interest is in the 2-mile great lakes championship race, which is open to men and women.

PROHIBITIONISTS TO HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION SOON

Large Crowds Arriving Now Indicate Meeting Will Be Greatest of History

Will Meet Next Wednesday and Thursday at St. Paul — Overflow Meetings Will Be Held.

St. Paul, July 15.—Prohibitionists are beginning to arrive for the national convention to be held Wednesday and Thursday of next week and for a series of important preliminary conferences to be held during the two days preceding. The Auditorium, where the general sessions of the convention will be held, is profusely decorated in red, white and blue. Overflow meetings will be held in the Armory and the Masonic Temple.

The large number of early arrivals is only one of the many outward and visible indications of the prevailing sentiment that the coming convention is destined to be the most important in the history of the Prohibition party. Many of the party leaders even venture to predict that the convention will mark a new epoch in national politics. This year, for the first time, the party means to lay serious claims to the presidency.

Talks with the leaders already on the field substantiate the early reports to the effect that the Prohibitionists hope to step into the shoes of the late Progressive party, to become the foremost progressive party in the country. The plans along this line will come to a head at a conference to be held the day previous to the meeting of the convention, when a movement will be launched to obtain notable recruits from the ranks of the other parties.

Several men formerly prominent in the Republican, Democratic or Progressive parties already have been taken into the fold. Among them are former Gov. Sulzer, of New York; former Gov. Foss, of Massachusetts, and former Gov. Hanly, of Indiana.

Each one of these, incidentally, is mentioned for the Prohibition presidential nomination. Mr. Sulzer is said to have a large following among Jews, railway trainmen and laborers. Mr. Foss is credited by the Prohibition workers with a considerable personal following and Mr. Hanly is believed to be influential with the Methodists and attendants at Chautauquas.

Daniel Poling, a leader of the Christian Endeavor movement, and Dr. Ira Landrith, a well known Y. M. C. A. worker, and others whose names are mentioned in connection with the head of the Prohibition national ticket. The selection of a vice presidential nominee will depend largely upon what section of the country the presidential choice comes from.

In its general aspect the platform will be similar to those of other years, but if the wishes of the progressive element of the party are carried out the declarations will be much broader in scope than ever before. The main plank, of course, will call for the unqualified prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicants. A straightout suffrage plank will be included, endorsing the Susan B. Anthony amendment. The labor declarations will be more explanatory than heretofore. The danger of hyphenated Americanism will be recognized. On the subject of foreign relations the platform is expected to declare for "strict neutrality and a dignified presentation of principles based on 'America first.'"

The detailed program prepared for the week is as follows:

Monday—Young people's society conference, followed by intercollegiate oratorical contest in the evening, with contestants from eight states.

Tuesday—Conference on the "Five

Million Club" movement to obtain recruits from the old parties; mass meeting in afternoon.

Wednesday—Opening of the convention at 2 P. M., with address by Daniel A. Poling, temporary chairman; reception for suffragists, 4:30 P. M.; concert by convention chorus and orchestra, and addresses by party leaders, 8 P. M.

Thursday—Permanent organization of convention, adoption of platform, followed by prohibition parade at 4 P. M.; concert at 7:30 P. M., and mass meeting in the evening, known as "governors' night," with addresses by several former governors.

Friday—Nomination of ticket, followed by an evening concert and opening meeting of campaign, with addresses by the nominees for president and vice president, and other national leaders of the party.

RED LETTER DAY FOR CALUMET.

Calumet, Mich., July 15.—One hundred and sixty-three gold medals, with an aggregate value of nearly $25,000, were presented today to 169 employees of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company as tokens of the company's esteem for their faithful service covering a period of forty years or more. More than 1,000 employees of the company received silver medals.

The presentation of the medals was but one of many interesting features in connection with the big family gathering held in celebration of the company's semi-centennial. Twenty thousand persons participated in the celebration. From Boston, where the headquarters of the company have always been maintained, came a party of several hundred that included among its members the general officers and veteran employees, together with the descendants of Alexander Agassiz and Quincy A. Shaw, the two Bostonians who first began the development of the Michigan copper mines in 1866 and whose families are still dominant in the control of the present properties.

Monday—Young people's society conference, followed by intercollegiate oratorical contest in the evening, with contestants from eight states.

Tuesday—Conference on the "Five
